Your hospital health records

You and your parents can have access to your hospital records through the Care Information Exchange.

You can see your test results, hospital appointments and doctor's letters. You can also enter your own information such as symptoms you are experiencing and medication you are taking to provide a more complete record of your care.

It's your choice if you want you and your parents to be able to see your records.

'I want the young people I care for to have as much information as possible about their health.'

Dr Claudia Gore,
Consultant in paediatric allergy

How do I register?

Complete the registration form and provide proof of identity. You will need an email address for your username and so we can tell you when new information is added to your record. Your parents will also need to register if you would like them have access.

Need help? Contact the service desk at imperial.care-informationexchange@nhs.net.

Is my information safe?

Yes, the Care Information Exchange is part of the secure NHS network. Your information can only be used by health and care professionals who are caring for you.

The Care Information Exchange was funded by Imperial Health Charity for the benefit of patients in north west London.
