

Your friend or carer can wait close by, outside the room, during the x-ray.

The radiology team will look at the pictures and tell you when you can go.

What happens next:

The results will be given to the doctor who sent you to us.

Your doctor will talk to you about your x-ray results.

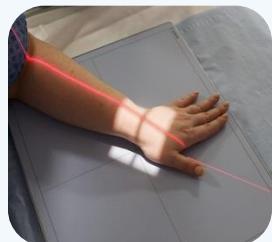

At the imaging reception you will be asked to sit in the waiting area.

You may be asked to change into a hospital gown.

An x-ray doesn't hurt and nothing touches you.

You may have to put your hand or foot onto a plate.

You may have to lie down on the table.

The radiographer will move the big camera into position.

You must lie very still.

The radiographer will move behind the screen while the x-ray is being taken.
