Ambulatory holter monitor

Information for patients, relatives and carers

Introduction

Your doctor has requested that we fit you with a heart monitor. This leaflet explains what will happen at your appointment. Please contact your care team if you have any questions or concerns.

What is an ambulatory holter monitor?

Ambulatory holter monitors are non-invasive, battery-powered devices that you wear around your waist or neck to record your heart's electrical activity. This recording helps your doctor to see any relationship between your symptoms and your heart rhythm.

What to expect at your appointment

When you arrive for your appointment, we will fit you with a small heart monitor that will take a continuous recording of your heart rhythm. The monitoring system has five leads which we will attach to your chest using stickers. We will either place the recording device around your neck using a small pouch, or around your waist using a belt. We will explain the test to you in detail.

You will need to wear the recording system for the length of time requested by your consultant (typically 24 hours) and return it to us on the day that we ask you to (this is usually the next day).

We will also give you a diary sheet so you can write down any symptoms you experience while wearing the device.

Please note you will not be able to have a bath or shower while wearing the device.

We advise that you:

- wear loose-fitting clothes
- take any medications as normal, unless advised otherwise

When will I receive the results?

You will receive the results of your test at your follow-up outpatient appointment. The results will not be sent directly to your GP.

Depending on your results, the physician may recommend further tests.
